

Gen. Jackson's Letter.
"Looking upon the latter gentleman as the representative of federal principles in the present contest," &c.
What "federal principles in the present contest" are represented by Gen. Harrison? The above quotation is from Gen. Jackson, but that alone does not make it true. Neither himself or any other man can name a federal principle in the present contest, contended for by the whigs. Is a National Bank a federal principle? Then charge Gen. Washington as the leader of federal principles. Is "a reform of those abuses which bring the patronage of the General Government into conflict with the freedom of elections," a federal principle? Then charge Gen. Harrison as the leader of federal principles. Is one Presidential Term a federal principle? Harrison has no example for this, and if it be federal then charge it upon him, for he is the father and "supporter" of it. Is restriction in the veto power a federal principle? Charge that also upon General Harrison.

Mr. Van Buren, it is well known and conceded on all hands, entertains the principle that the General Government ought not to interfere in any way whatever with the subject of finance or currency except for the sole purpose of managing the funds of the Federal Treasury in view alone of its own interest. On the contrary, General Harrison believes that the general government should at all times regard the general currency and condition of the country; and so manage the public revenue as best to promote and foster a sound and healthy currency for the business and industry of the country! Which of these, we ask, in the spirit of fairness and candor is the "federal principle?"

This, after all is the great matter now at issue. It is one of the leading and all important "principles in the present contest." Almost all the other matters at issue grow directly out of this great "Federal Principle." Shall the general government, in its management of the public finances, have regard to the soundness of the general currency, and to the health and prosperity of the business of the country or shall it not? Now if either side of this question is a "federal principle" then its "representative" can easily be recognized, for Harrison and Van Buren are here directly at issue. And most respectfully would we ask the people which side of the question do you occupy?

Mr. Van Buren contends for the Sub-Treasury (just passed) which gives to the President the control (through and by officers appointed by himself) of the whole public revenue, so that it is at all times in their immediate possession. General Harrison believes that the public money should be as far removed from the Executive as practicable, and so that he or any of his officers cannot control a dollar except by appropriations by law. Which of these is the "federal principle?"

General Jackson has certainly too much respect for himself and care for his veracity to pretend to say that General Harrison has ever had any connection with the old Federal Party. And we think it is "a mockery of all public principle" for him to attempt to place his fame and popularity in competition with the history of the times and the force and meaning of language.

A GOOD EXAMPLE.—Our friends of Benton celebrated the Fourth of July without the use of ardent spirits upon the ground. The banner says "hard cider and good wine were all that were used."

F. A. TYLER, Esq.—We neglected to notice in the proper place that this gentleman, the former editor of the Vicksburg Register, (now the Whig) is now the assistant editor of the "Southern Reporter." Mr. T. is a good writer and a good whig.

Bank of Virginia.
The examination of B. W. Green for being concerned in the Dabney defalcation has been concluded. The Court came to the unanimous decision to send him on for trial before the fall term of the Superior Court on both counts in the indictment.

A Wreck Abandoned.
The Van Buren Central Committee of Illinois have given notice that the design of holding "a Democratic State Convention at Springfield is abandoned." Really the men are coming to their senses.

A lunatic hospital ought to be built in Mississippi immediately. It was only a few days ago that we heard two men declaring their belief that Van Buren would be re-elected President.

We have received the first number of the Weekly Times, published at N. Orleans. We presume from the specimen that it is intended to advance the cause of political and editorial decency and morality, as it is chiefly filled with such expressions as the following:—"British whigs," "whig loafers," "British whig lie," "Defamation and audacity of falsehood," &c. &c. The very witty and smart term of "British whig" is applied to the whig party, in the said first number of the Times about twenty-five times.

Governor Cass.
We see it stated in many of the newspapers, but without any special authority, that this old fellow soldier of General Harrison, who now holds so distinguished a station in the administration of Van Buren, is in favor of the election of his old comrade in the time of trial. We would like to see something certain on the subject.

Harrison Conventions in the west are so numerous attended that the number present are usually estimated by the acre. Numerical calculations are quite too tedious.

The Difference.
Mr. Van Buren is held up as the friend of the South upon the subject of slavery and abolition and the southern people are modestly requested to vote for him in preference to General Harrison upon that ground.

Now let's see the difference. To the facts and to the testimony.
Van Buren has "pledged himself" to vote a bill if passed by Congress abolishing slavery in the District of Columbia. But nevertheless, he says that he believes that Congress has the right to pass such a bill. Well, General Harrison utterly denies the power of Congress to pass such a bill at all. Well, as to the constitutionality of the people of the non-slave-holding States to agitate the question of the abolition of slavery. General Harrison says emphatically that such discussion is unconstitutional. Mr. Van Buren has never given his opinions or sentiments upon that question that we know of.

And how is it in regard to the Territories? Have the Territories the right to retain the institution of slavery when they come into the Union, or has Congress the power to require them to come in as a free State or stay out of the Union? This was the Missouri Question; and it is well known that the two candidates for the Presidency voted and spoke on opposite sides of it. Van Buren in favor of the exercise of such a power by Congress in the Missouri case and Harrison opposing the assumption of such a power altogether. These are plain unquestionable facts for plain men to look at.

The "Plain Simple Plan."
The Sub-Treasury bill is called "a plain simple plan for the collection, safe keeping and disbursement of the public money." This we believe, is what it advocates claim for it. And this is one of the strongest reasons why we oppose it. If it is exactly what Mr. Van Buren and his friends say it is, if it has precisely the merits they claim for it—all the merits and no more—that is an all-sufficient reason why the people should oppose it. We do not believe it is the best plan for the "collection, safe keeping and disbursement of the public money," but if it were we would oppose it with all the might of our opposition, because it is simply such a plan and nothing else. Is the Government to do nothing for the people? Are the treasures of this country—seventeen millions of people, to groan and struggle, and still struggle, year after year, from years end to years end, with a weight of difficulty and embarrassment and poverty that the nation never saw before, and their government—their own government, quietly content itself with "a plain simple plan for the collection, safe keeping and disbursement of the public money? Are the people going to permit their government to confine all its financial operations and influence, under such circumstances as now exist, to the mere advantageous control of its own finances? Nay, more. Are they going to permit their government so to manage the public finances as that the existence of a convenient currency for the people shall be utterly impracticable? When these people around us acknowledge a willing obedience and a ready servitude to the Federal Government, they will perhaps do it. But so long as they are free and look to themselves for protection—so long as we are citizens of distinct states and believe that those states have exclusive rights—so long as we are a people that govern ourselves we will not do it. No we cannot. The people that LABOR in this country, and EARN the money, pay into the Federal Treasury thirty or forty millions a year, for what? That "the Cabinet" may "collect, safely keep and disburse the public money"—this same money? Is this what the general government is sustained for? Is this what our taxes to the federal government are paid for? Rather than see such a doctrine fastened upon the country we would see the Union dissolved! Yes, dissolved. This is not a hasty or heated reflection. And if in the future history of wrong and misfortune, such a high-handed measure of federal oppression ever does fasten itself upon us, this right hand for one, if it retains its physical energy, will advocate, as a wholesome measure, for the welfare of the people, a speedy dissolution of the Union. Not that we love Caesar less, but Rome more.

Since the above was in type we learn that the Sub-Treasury Bill has passed both houses of Congress.
We learn from the Vicksburg Whig of the 2d inst., that incendiaries are at work about that city.
"Important if True."
The following item of news is from the New-York Star of late date. If the information is correct it is certainly beneficial to the money spending world.
"It is well remarked by a cotemporary that a mint julep costs as much as a daily paper for a fortnight; and yet many who pay their money most willingly for the one, shell it out most grudgingly for the other."
And if it will pay for a daily paper for a fortnight, how long will it pay for a weekly? Wish somebody would cypher it out.

Southern Manufacturers.
A convention of manufacturers was held at Raleigh, N. C., on the 15th ult., on the subject of the manufacture of domestic cotton yarns on a more extensive scale than heretofore.

An Infamous Lie.
A dirty blackguard in Philadelphia, who publishes the Spirit of the Times, in a late number, asserts the equally infamous Pennsylvania in giving utterance to the following infamous lie.
"The Muzzles Tonn.—Two gentlemen from Kentucky (says the Pennsylvaniaian) lately called upon General Harrison, and presented him a letter from the Democratic Central Committee of that State, requesting him to answer some questions relative to his opinions on abolitionism; he replied that he would not answer any interrogatories, coming either from friends or foes."
Three gentlemen from Kentucky lately called upon Gen. Harrison and presented to him a letter from the Central Whig Committee for the second electoral district in Kentucky relative to his opinions on abolitionism—and "he replied" in the following manner.

"Gentlemen.—In answer to your inquiry whether the letters and speeches which have been published in my name by my political friends, particularly those contained in a pamphlet lately published in Cincinnati by Col. C. S. Todd and Benj. Drake, Esq., contain the sentiments and opinions which I at present entertain, I repeat, what I have lately written to a committee of my friends in New York, that I should not consider myself as honest man to suffer these letters & speeches to be thus used without contradiction if any alteration had taken place in my opinions. I am, very respectfully,
Your fellow-citizen,
W. H. HARRISON."
To Charles M. Truett, Henry Firtle, G. W. Anderson, Louisville, Ky.

The Mayor of Baltimore offers a reward of $1000 for the incendiaries who have committed recent depredations in that city!

FLORIDA.
The Star of Florida, published at Tallahassee, is an able and spirited paper, devoted to the cause of Reform and the people. It was heretofore neutral in politics but it was too honest and patriotic to stand that long. An article of some length in the Star of the 16th June, opens as follows:
"It is frequently asked, what interest has Florida in the presidential question; seeing that she has no vote in the Electoral College, and her voice, on which ever side it may be, will have no influence on the result."
"It is true, that while a Territory, Florida will have no vote in the election of President; but she has nevertheless, a greater interest in the result at stake, than is felt in any of the States."
Yes, indeed, the Territories are more interested than the States. Will Florida not desire admission into the Union before long? Will her citizens want the privilege of retaining the ownership of their slaves? What are the sentiments of Harrison and what are the sentiments of Van Buren upon the question of the right of a Territory to come into the Union with the right of slavery in her Constitution? Did Mr. Van Buren ever VOTE upon that question? He did. Did Harrison enter into that contest also? Verily if Florida is not interested in that question none of us are!

"It is stated on good authority, that orders have been issued for the speedy withdrawal of all the United States Troops in Middle Florida leaving the whole protection of the country to Governor Reid's militia, without arms, resources, or leaders—unless, indeed, the leaders in an electioneering campaign may be supposed to be competent to the discharge of important military duties."
Star of Florida.
Well, in the name of all that is brave, chivalrous, fair or honorable, what good do the "United States Troops" do in Florida? What have they ever done except take a warrior by the treachery of the flag and capture seven women and four children? You'd as well let them go.
Extract of a letter to the Editor, dated "CARROLL Co., 9th July, 1840."
"Aware of the satisfaction it affords you and your numerous readers, to hear of the progress that is making for Harrison and Reform, I have thought I could not spend a few moments better than by informing you that in Carroll county there have been more changes in favor of the whig party, within the last two months, than I have ever known in the same length of time, particularly in the northern portion of the county, where in one single neighborhood there is some eight or ten persons, who have heretofore been the most inveterate opposers of whig principles, have publicly proclaimed their abolition from the 'powers that be,' and determined to record their votes for the 'Hero of North Bend' in November. These are not imaginary changes either, they are real, and their names could be given if it were necessary. I would also add, that there is a general spirit of enquiry manifested by a great many of the Van Buren party here, to ascertain the 'true issue' in the great struggle now going on—the minds of many are open to conviction, who are ready, as soon as it can be fairly laid before them, to abandon those principles which all whigs, 'good and true,' believe to be anti-republican; tending, beyond a doubt to the subversion and downfall of the best form of government that ever existed."

DIED.
In this city, on Saturday, the 18th inst., Mrs. LAMAR BOSLEY, relict of the late Dr. Bosley of this place, aged about 19 years.
The deceased was a native of Missouri, but her parents had been residents of this place for some years. Kind and affable in her manner, courteous and friendly to her neighbors, of a mild amiable disposition, she was the pleasing companion of all who knew her, and affectionately beloved by those linked to her by the ties of relationship. But, beauty, youth and virtue could not stay the monster Death—who promiscuously grasps alike the young and the old—and in a moment neither known or thought of, she is torn from friends, kindred and family, to pay the last sad debt of the living. But a few days since, and she who is now "numbered with the dead" was in the prime of health, loving and beloved, and enjoying every thing necessary to render life agreeable—but like the Rose of Summer, reared by a rude hand, she has perished in the bloom. She was for some time past a member of the Methodist Church; and it is hoped has received that "crown of everlasting life" which she sought to secure, while in this world. No heart beat more responsive to a husband's love—no daughter—no sister ever breathed a gentler and a more confiding love—no friend ever bore the name who knew better how to play upon the sweet chord of sincerity—for to her "guile was a stranger enemy"—than she whose spirit like the Heavenly Dove, has returned to the God who gave it.
"The loveliest Star of evening's train
Sets early in the Western main,
And leaves the world in night—
The brightest Star of morning's host,
Scarcely risen, in brighter beams are lost;
Thus, sank her form on ocean's coast,
Thus, sprang her soul to light." W.

PROSPECTUS
THE YAZOO WERK.
We present this paper to the public with the view of extending the circulation of the WHIG of this city still further into the midst of the community in which we live, than our present subscription extends. The extension of political intelligence and truth—the spread of general and miscellaneous information—the support of public morality and the moral character of our state, and a laborious compensation to the proprietor and his family, make up the motives for this issue to extend our subscription lists. For several long years we have in this city lent an untiring exertion in behalf of the great cause of political truth and the welfare of our country. We have opposed the late and present administrations of the general government without hesitation and without compromise in all things where they have acted, in our opinion, for the benefit of a party, regardless of the good of the people. And through the dark seasons of the country, within the last two years, when public wickedness seemed to flourish like a green bay tree—when the President seemed to be successful in carrying his party and his party measures in party triumph over the land in spite of the lamentations of the people, we have not flinched in the battle of resistance in a single effort in the battle of reform. But uniformly we have maintained the moral impossibility of the final success of a party, and consequent overthrow of the people, in a country like this. We have maintained an unwavering confidence in the patriotism of the people, that they, sooner or later, control their own interest and rid themselves of this immense unnecessary evil, that low and universally paralytic industry of the people of the great country. We have endeavored faithfully to spread over the country all useful information; and as we, from time to time, have thought would interest and benefit our readers; and we have endeavored to protect the public morality and character of the State against foreign aggression and internal bickering and dissension.

We present, in our columns of the future, the pages of our journal which we have already published, and our promise that our industry and perseverance shall be at all times in requisition to make our paper as useful to the public as within our means. Any person procuring five subscribers shall be entitled to one copy for their exertions. TERMS.—The Werk will be furnished to subscribers at Five Dollars in Advance.
